Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 8, 9 and 11-13 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Carolan et al. (U.S. Pat. 5,750,279).

Regarding claims 8, 9, 11 and 12, Carolan et al. teaches dielectric elements [140, 142] positioned in abutment to electrolytic cell [120] (i.e. a tubular fuel cell) with a sealant coating [170] mutually joined thereto. See Figure 8 and col. 11 line 9 et seq. The sealant is specifically disclosed as a silver bronze alloy. See col. 10 line 24 et seq. The assembly once formed is specifically disclosed as being fired at a temperature of 750° C to effect the seal, which is deemed readable on the claimed sintering step. See col. 8 line 43 et seq. and col. 11 line 19 et seq.

As to claim 13, which recites the fuel cell assembly as being employed as an auxiliary unit in a vehicle viz. the claimed method in accordance with claim 8, this feature has not been given patentable weight since it is more properly drawn to a method of using the fuel cell, and is thus not considered in accordance with the method of making recited in claim 8.

Notwithstanding, Official Notice is taken that fuel cells are well-known as powerplants in vehicles, and the examiner reserves the right to demonstrate this knowledge by way of citation as being instantly and unquestionably in the possession of the skilled artisan.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 10 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Carolan et al. in view of Larminie et al. (Fuel Cell Systems Explained, 2nd ed.)

The teachings of Carolan et al. are discussed above.

Carolan et al. teaches that the dielectric element is ceria, inter alia. While yttrium-stabilized zirconia (YSZ) is not explicitly taught, Larminie et al. is relied upon to demonstrate mutual equivalence of ceria with YSZ, and additionally would be an obvious substitution to the skilled artisan in recognition of the higher stability of YSZ in elevated temperatures.
